DECISION AND ORDER

The above action arises upon the employer's request for review pursuant to 20 C.F.R. 656.26 (1991) of the denial by the United States Department of Labor Certifying Officer ("CO") of alien labor certification. This application was submitted by employer on behalf of the above-named alien pursuant to §212 (a) (5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1990, 8 U.S.C. § 1182 (a) (5) ("Act"). The certification of aliens for permanent employment is governed by § 212 (a) (5) (A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §1182 (a) (5) (A), and Title 20, Part 656 of the Code of Federal Regulations ("CFR"). Unless otherwise noted, all regulations cited in this decision are in Title 20.

Under § 212 (a) (5) of the Act an alien seeking to enter the United States for the purpose of performing skilled or unskilled labor is ineligible to receive labor certification unless the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified to the Secretary of State and Attorney General that at the time of application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform the work: (1) there are not sufficient workers in the United States who are able, willing, qualified, and available; and, (2) the employment of the alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of United States workers similarly employed.

We base our decision on the record upon which the CO denied certification and employer's request for review, as contained in the Appeal File,¹ and any written argument of the parties. § 656.27(c).

Statement of the Case

On January 27, 1994, Johnny's Famous Reef Restaurant ("employer") filed an application for labor certification to enable Marco Ramirez ("alien") to fill the position of Cook at a weekly wage of $303 (AF 14). The job duties are described as follows:

Prepare and cook seafood dishes in menu such as fried or steamed whiting, porgy, etc. using special frier or steamer. Cooks soups. Clean, cut and bread fish, scallops, lobster. Open mussels and oysters, prepare shrimp cocktail and seafood salads.

The job requirements are two years of experience in the job offered.

On July 26, 1995, the CO issued the Notice of Findings proposing to deny the labor certification. The CO cited a violation of §656.21 (b) (5) which requires the employer to document that the requirements for the position are the minimum necessary for the performance of the job. The CO noted that the alien had no experience in the occupation prior to his employment with this employer, and therefore found that the alien was trained for the position. The CO stated this finding may be rebutted by: (1) submitting evidence which clearly shows that the alien at the time of hire had the qualifications now required, (2) submitting evidence that it is not feasible to train a U.S. worker for the position, or (3) decreasing the requirement of two years of experience. The CO also challenged the employer's compliance with § 656.20 (g) (1) which requires the employer to document that notice of the filing of the Application for Alien Employment Certification was provided.

In rebuttal, dated August 29, 1995, the employer argued that it does not have the time or staff to train a new cook because it has experienced an increase in business from $ 3,854,384 in 1990 to $ 4,328,271 in 1995. During this time, however, the restaurant staff remained steady at a total of 45 employees (AF 47). The employer stated that the alien's brother, another cook at the restaurant, trained the alien during off-duty hours. The employer also reported that it posted a notice of the position on the business premises for ten days, and that there were no responses to the notice.

The CO issued the Final Determination on October 10, 1995 denying the labor certification. The CO found that the employer adequately rebutted § 656.20 (g) (1) by re-posting the notice of the job opportunity. However, the CO found that the employer failed to comply with the minimum requirements provision at § 656.21 (b) (5).

On October 18, 1995, the employer requested review of Denial of Labor Certification pursuant to § 656.26 (b) (1) (AF 64).

Discussion

The issue presented by this appeal is whether the employer specified the minimum job qualifications for the offered position as required by § 656.21 (b) (5). Section 656.21 (b) (5) provides that an employer is required to document that its requirements for the job opportunity are the minimum necessary for the performance of the job and that the employer has not hired workers with less training or that it is not feasible to hire workers with less training or experience than that required by the employer's job offer. This section addresses situations where the employer requires more stringent qualifications for a U.S. worker than it requires of the alien, and prevents the employer from treating an alien more favorably than it would a U.S. worker. ERF Inc., d/b/a/ Bayside Motor Inn, 89-INA-105 (Feb. 14, 1990).

It is well settled that an employer violates § 656.21 (b) (5) if it hired the alien with lower qualifications than it specified on the labor certification application, unless the employer demonstrates that it is infeasible to train U.S. workers. See Capriccio's Restaurant, 90-INA-480 (Jan. 7, 1992); Office-Plus, Inc., 90-INA-184 (Dec. 19, 1991); Gerson Industries, 90-INA-190 (Dec. 19, 1991); Rosiello Dental Laboratory, 88-INA-104 (Dec. 22, 1988); MMMats, Inc., 87-INA-540 (Nov. 24, 1987). Furthermore, the Board also has held that under § 656.21 (b) (5), an employer may not require U.S. applicants to have the same type of experience that the alien acquired only while working for the employer in the same job. Central Harlem Group, Inc., 89-INA-284 (May 14, 1991).

In rebuttal, the employer argued that it is infeasible to train U.S. workers for the offered position because the restaurant has experienced a substantial increase in business volume over the past few years while the restaurant staff has remained constant at 45 employees. The employer pointed out that the alien was trained under special circumstances because the alien's brother, a cook in the restaurant, trained the cook during off-duty hours. The employer thus maintains that it does not have the time or the staff to train a new cook.

In the Final Determination, the CO noted that the employer has realized an increase in annual business of almost $500,000 per year over the five-year period from the time the alien was trained to the time the application was filed. The CO thus concluded that this substantial growth in income would allow for resources needed to train U.S. workers for the position. The CO found the employer's rebuttal argument unconvincing, and determined that the employer failed to prove that it was infeasible to train a U.S. worker for the position. See also 58th Street Restaurant Corp., 90-INA-58 (Feb. 21, 1991); Fingers, Faces, and Toes, 90-INA-56 (Feb. 8, 1991) (the employer's burden of establishing why it is not now feasible to offer the same favorable treatment to U.S. applicants has been characterized as heavy). In Super Seal Manufacturing Co., 88-INA-417 (Apr. 12, 1989) (en banc), the Board held that an increase in volume of business or general growth and expansion, by itself, is insufficient to establish infeasibility. See also Green Kitchen Restaurant, 91-INA-259 (July 17, 1992). The Board held that unless an employer proves otherwise, increased training capability is presumed to accompany growth. We believe the employer has failed to overcome this presumption, and therefore conclude certification properly was denied.

ORDER

The Certifying Officer's denial of labor certification is hereby AFFIRMED.
